

I am writing to urge the FCC to reject the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) petition 04-160, and allow satellite radio providers, like XM and Sirius, to continue to provide the entertainment and informational programming they are currently allowed. I find the programming offered by satellite radio--in my case XM--more very valuable and entertaining than available elsewhere (in public broadcasts). So much so, that I am willing to pay a monthly premium for the higher quality, more variety, and richer content.
